Rottingdean

A fascinating Sussex village by the sea

Near the City of Brighton and Hove

Once visited - never forgotten

www.rottingdeanvillage.org.uk

Rottingdean

is a unique downland Parish nestled between the South Downs National Park and the sea, with an absorbing story to tell, being only 4 miles to the east of Brighton and its main line railway station and bus terminal. www.rottingdeanvillage.org.uk

Village history

The village developed from neolithic times around the pond opposite the church as a small farming community. The village's name translates as 'the valley of Rota's people'. After the Battle of Hastings, Rottingdean was given as a reward to William de Warenne, the Lord of Lewes in acknowledgement of his support to William the Conqueror.

Famous residents

At the end of the 19th century, writers, artists and public figures began to settle here. Residents have included Sir Edward Burne-Jones, William Black, Lord Carson, Rudyard Kipling, Lady Baldwin, Sir William Nicholson, Sir Roderick Jones, Alfred Noyes, Enid Bagnold, Angela Thirkell, Fred Perry and the contemporary, famed folk singing family, the Coppers.

1 Beach & Sea

The beach is backed by chalk cliffs and a life guard service operates in summer. There are rock pools to explore and the remains of tracks for Magnus Volk's extraordinary 'Daddy Longlegs' Railway can be seen. The only train ever to have a lifeboat attached, it ran from 1896-1901. There is a recently restored building containing public toilets and a cafe. www.rottingdeanvillage.org.uk/around-about/history-environment

2 The Gap, Cliffs & Undercliff

The long undercliff walk from Black Rock to Saltdean was built between 1930 and 1935 as part of the sea defences to reduce the erosion of the chalk cliffs. The Gap is a natural valley in the cliffs allowing access to the village.

3 Rottingdean Terraces

Rottingdean terraces, situated between the White Horse Hotel and the seafront have recently been converted into a multi-purpose outdoor performance stage and auditorium. For forthcoming performances go to www.rottingdeanarts.org.uk

4 The Old Customs House

During the heyday of smuggling in the 17th and 18th centuries the Rottingdean Gang was active. The customs house in the High Street, opposite the Trellis restaurant, was established in 1760 to help prevent further smuggling.

5 Our Lady of Lourdes Church

Our Lady of Lourdes Catholic Church, consecrated in 1958, is situated in Whiteway Lane. The catholic presence in the village began with the arrival of the dispossessed Sisters of St. Martha from France in 1903 who established the convent of Our Lady of Lourdes, now situated on the west side of the Green. www.ourladyoflourdesandstpatricks.co.uk

6 The Grange, Gallery, Museum & Library

Originally the Vicarage and renamed by Sir William Nicholson, The Grange now contains a Public Library, an Art Gallery and a local Visitor Information Point. There is a Museum of Rottingdean and its famous residents and a garden café. www.rottingdeanpreservationsociety.org.uk

7 The Green & village pond

The Green, in front of St Margaret's Church has been the focus of village activities since the Stone Age. The pond, once fed by a spring, provided the only source of drinking water during Neolithic and Saxon times both for humans and livestock. It is a place for calm reflection and enjoyment

8 North End House

A blue plaque identifies the former holiday home of Sir Edward Burne-Jones. Later residents included the author of National Velvet, Enid Bagnold and her husband, head of Reuters, Sir Roderick Jones. www.mybrightonandhove.org.uk

9 The Elms & Kipling Gardens

Rudyard Kipling wrote some of his most famous works whilst living at The Elms between 1897 and 1902. Formerly within the grounds of The Elms, Kipling Gardens are open every day to the public and contain a walled rose garden, an area of ornamental grasses, a chalkland wild area and a croquet lawn. The gardens have been awarded the prestigious Green Flag for at least ten consecutive years. www.rottingdeanpreservationsociety.org.uk

10 St Margaret's Church

The Parish Church was originally built during the Saxon era with a tower being added by the Normans. In 1377 villagers sought refuge from French pirates and most died when the church was torched. It contains many stained glass windows from the 19th century including 7 designed by Burne-Jones. www.stmargaret.org.uk

11 Challoners and Little Challoners

The old manor house of Rottingdean dates back to 1450 but only the cellars remain of the original building. Thomas Challoner built the manor but it later passed into the hands of the Beard family. Extensions were built right up to the 19th century and one distinctive feature is the Solarium window. The present building, with its hidden smugglers tunnels, dates back to the late 16th century.

12 Beacon Hill Nature Reserve

Adjacent to the Windmill is a Neolithic long barrow dating back to at least 4000 years BC, discovered in 1995 by an aerial survey. The Local Nature Reserve on Beacon Hill is looked after by a Working Group to preserve the flora, fauna and ecology of the Downs. www.rottingdean-pc.gov.uk/beacon_hill

13 The Windmill

The windmill is situated on Beacon Hill. It is open to the public on National Mill days and every 3rd Sunday from May to September between 2.00-4.30pm. Any other opening times will be published on the web site below. www.rottingdeanpreservationsociety.org.uk

14 Beacon Hub Brighton

Beacon Hub Brighton has now taken over the Pavilion and adjacent car park for educational purposes engaging learners of all ages in science, history, health and well being and arts and crafts, with the added facility of a refreshment kiosk inside. beaconhubbrighton.org
